By Jennifer Luberto

BRECKENRIDGE, CO — On Nov. 26, 2019, I packed my truck and drove half way across the country from New Jersey to a little mountain town in Colorado known as Breckenridge. How did a Jersey girl end up in this skier's paradise of a town? Well, here it goes.

About 10 years ago, my older brother relocated to Breck on a whim. He heard great things and decided what the heck, packed his belongings and found his happy place here in Breckenridge. Not too long after, my younger brother did just the same. Since their moving out here, I would make annual trips to be with them and fell more and more in love with this mountain town.

After several slight conversations with my brothers, they convinced me to make the move to Breckenridge. It was a very easy twist of the arm. I was fortunate enough to have made relationships with the locals and lined up an interview with Ski Village Resorts. After a few weeks of back and forth interviews, I landed a position with the company! This was bittersweet victory for me as I had to leave my family in New Jersey, but we all knew Breckenridge had a life to offer that would never be matched back East. Several weeks later, I loaded whatever could fit in my Jeep and made the trek.

Fast forward to today, each morning on my ride to work I am in awe by where I live with the alpenglow draping the mountains and the quaint cheerful town. It is often difficult to work in such a beautiful, wonder of a place, but I am fortunate enough to work for a company that has roots in the community. I have met so many wonderful people since being with Ski Village Resorts that I otherwise would not have. There are the old time ski instructors that have stories that you just won't believe, the entrepreneurs who are creating new opportunities for the locals and constantly adding to the Breckenridge experience and, of course, the guests visiting from all over the world.

In the winter, I work during the resort's operating hours but I found a way of snowboarding on the days I work by skinning uphill. I split my snowboard in two, hike up the mountain and get in a run. This will be the most rewarding run you will ever take! I also use the split board to voyage to different huts in the area that I otherwise would not be able to access. The views are amazing, and the experience of "camping" out in a snow-covered cabin nestled on a mountaintop is one that should not be missed.

If you have never been to Breck, imagine this, "Whoville." For those not familiar, it is a fictional, fantastical town from Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas. In the winter, the snow covered streets and brilliantly lit storefronts are like being in a snow globe. There are no words or pictures that could possibly capture how magical it feels to be in Downtown Breckenridge on a snowy winter night.

The long of the short is that I moved to Breckenridge less than a year ago, and this surreal town had such an impact on me that I purchased a place of my own. This was a bold move that I will never regret.
