

SIERRA-at-TAHOE RISES from the CALDOR FIRE

West Bowl goals achieved with its amazing opening on December 21 to help celebrate their 75th Anniversary

Sierra-at-Tahoe, and all Lake Tahoe Resorts, received copious amounts of snowfall before the Christmas Holiday and again on New Year's Eve. As of New Year's Day, Sierra reported almost 200 inches of snowfall on their mountain.

After a season off due to damage sustained from the Caldor Fire, and now with restoration efforts continuing, Sierra welcomes long-time loyalists and new friends back to explore.

TWIN BRIDGES, CA – On Aug. 29, 2022, the Caldor Fire reached Sierra-at-Tahoe, blazing directly through the West Bowl area of the mountain, causing significant damage to the ski lifts, trails, trees and a maintenance building. Today, the remediation goals for West Bowl in Phase I have been achieved with over 14,000 fire-killed and damaged hazard trees cut and in progress of being removed from the resort. This was possible due to concerted efforts across the United States Forest Service (USFS), El Dorado Resource Conservation District (RCD), El Dorado Community Foundation and Kingsborough Atlas Tree Surgery, Inc. (Atlas Tree) in collaboration with Sierra.

RCD Foresters, John Quidachay and Jim Davis, continued to work closely with Atlas meeting the day to day challenges on steep and difficult terrain. Quidachay says in all his 40 years as a practicing forester, the Sierra-at-Tahoe Caldor Fire recovery and restoration project is one of the most difficult he has worked on. "The collective efforts and expertise of all the personnel involved has been tremendous," Quidachay says. "Our immediate attention has been to conduct operations in a workmanlike and orderly manner to achieve the resort reopening objective and to protect National Forest resources such as waterways and soil resources".

Attention was first directed to West Bowl, the area with the largest footprint and most severe damage. After just 55 days of intensive efforts by hand fallers, heavy equipment operators, and trucking crews, approximately 5 million board feet of timber has been removed from Sierra's slopes.

Non-merchantable timber was chipped and broadcast to provide ground insulation on ski trails to increase the longevity of snowpack and help with erosion control. Salvageable timber is being trucked to Tahoe Forest Products to be milled and repurposed, and some remaining wood will be memorialized at Sierra. Atlas anticipated an additional 15 million board feet of salvaged timber from this Sierra project would be sent to the mill.

With 40 to 50 truckloads of hazardous timber being hauled off the mountain daily, what once seemed an insurmountable feat is now in the rear view mirror.

"When I look at the mountain, I see opportunity. New terrain just waiting to be explored and new memories waiting to be made," John Rice, General Manager at Sierra-at-Tahoe says. "We are looking forward to a long overdue 'welcome home' to our guests this winter. For long-time passholders or first time guests alike, there will be something new for everyone, and that is exciting."

With the first phase of West Bowl complete, the crews have begun hand felling operations on the east side of the mountain, near Sugar N' Spice and Jack's Bowl with sights set on tackling the areas impacted on the Backside of the resort. The Upper Shop maintenance building, which was destroyed in the fire, is being rebuilt, led by Haen Constructors, with a goal of completion during the ski season.

Jack Pippin Named Ski & Ride Director

Sierra-at-Tahoe welcomed new Director of Ski & Ride School and Teams Jack Pippin in the approach of opening for the season. An industry veteran, Pippin brings over 25 years of experience, formerly serving at Mount Brighton, Heavenly Mountain Resorts and most recently as the Director Ski School and Services at Sugar Bowl in 2021.

"I am grateful to join Sierra during this critical time. The leadership team is revered across the basin as one of the strongest in the industry," Pippin says. "I see a team that has embraced extreme adversity, leaned in during a time that would have been easy to turn away, and I look forward to helping write its next chapter."

Pippin will play a critical role in the redesign of the snowsports school as the resort makes progress toward a return to full operations following the Caldor Fire.
